INDIAN KNOWLEDGE SYSTEMS (IKS)

The Cell for Indian Knowledge System at Bombay Hospital College of Nursing is dedicated to preserving, promoting and integrating the rich intellectual heritage of India into modern education. The Indian healthcare system is witnessing a paradigm shift, with a growing emphasis on holistic and culturally sensitive care. In line with this trend, the Indian government has been promoting the integration of Indian Knowledge Systems (IKS) into modern healthcare education. The IKS Cell at Bombay Hospital College of Nursing, Indore, is a pioneering initiative in this direction, aiming to revive and promote India's rich cultural heritage in nursing education and practice.

OBJECTIVES

1. To promote awareness and appreciation of Indian culture and heritage.
2. To integrate Indian knowledge systems, traditions, and values into education and promoting a holistic understanding of India's cultural heritage.
3. To sensitize students to the cultural and philosophical underpinnings of Indian Knowledge Systems (IKS), fostering a deeper appreciation for India's intellectual traditions.
4. To foster a sense of national pride and identity.
5. To develop an understanding of India's rich cultural diversity.
6. To encourage interdisciplinary learning and exploration.

ACTIVITIES

1. Indian Health Sciences and Traditional Medicine: To educate students about traditional Indian medicines, including Ayurveda, Unani, Siddha. Through classes and workshops, students will gain knowledge and understanding of these ancient Indian health sciences.
2. Indian Education under Culture and Tradition: This aims to impart knowledge on India's rich cultural heritage, values, and ethics. This includes understanding traditional Indian values, philosophical traditions, and cultural sensitivity. Workshops/ seminar will be conducted on understanding and respecting Indian cultural diversity and tradition.
